

HELLO@KASPER-UX.COM

Kasper Jørgensen

With more than eight years of experience in digital design, I combine strategic thinking with a hands-on approach. I have worked across UX, UI, and product ownership, and I naturally take the lead in shaping direction, aligning teams, and delivering quality experiences.

Why choose me?

I am curious by nature and have a strong ability to understand both users and stakeholders. I thrive in cross functional teams and help create shared direction, even in complex environments with many perspectives.

I bring structure and clarity to projects and enjoy turning complexity into intuitive and engaging solutions. With a strong foundation in UX, experience leading projects, and a collaborative mindset, I contribute both creatively and strategically.

Experience with digital products

I design simple and intuitive digital solutions that make a real difference. With experience as a Product Owner, I understand the strategic perspective, but I prefer working close to the design and development process.

UX Designer → Product Owner

At Zeaeeye, I started as a UX Designer, developing solutions for sailors. Later, I took on full responsibility for product delivery as a Product Owner, with a focus on turning user needs into valuable, meaningful features.

Kasper has an absolute talent and is incredibly skilled, BUT what I value most is his passion and dedication to solving and completing tasks. He constantly considers how different problems can be solved. Kasper shows up to work in order to solve problems and create better products — not just to work!

User Experience Designer

I redesigned their entire website and ensured that customers had a smooth experience. My role included understanding user needs, creating designs, and developing prototypes.

Kasper has delivered fantastic solutions in close daily dialogue with our development team and participated in user tests with the U.S. to incorporate user feedback. It's a great pleasure to have Kasper on the team.

User Experience Freelancer

As a freelancer, I worked with both small and large companies, helping them improve their customer experiences. I focused on understanding user needs, creating intuitive interfaces, and enhancing overall usability.

Kasper has been super professional, and I asked him to apply for a full-time position at Oticon Medical. I know there are many UX designers out there, but not many are truly good and understand the business.

User Experience Manager

At Nilfisk, I was responsible for designing the interface for their new autonomous industrial machines. My role included researching technician needs, developing prototypes, and working with the team to make the self-driving machines easier to operate.

Kasper's professionalism and skills are impressive, and combined with his drive and strong collaboration abilities, this gave Kasper a natural role as the lead UX manager in our 9-person team.

GLOBAL PRODUCT MANAGER @ NILFISK

Interaktion Design Bachelor

Through my bachelor's degree in Interaction Design, I gained a solid understanding of how to create interactive digital products that improve the interaction between humans and machines.
